Ex-Life Insurance Policy Owner Elmer Greedy at a PONY Track

"Life insurance? I'd rather play the horses!"

"Because a PONY man showed me that betting to win makes a lot more sense."

Rocky Gumbah talks it over with Elmer Greedy

"When you buy life insurance," PONY man Rocky Gumbah told me, "You're betting to lose! Mainly, the Company that issues you that Insurance Policy is making book you stay alive—while you're betting you kick off. Now what kind of a gamble is that? If you win, you lose! When the pay-off comes, you ain't around to collect!"

"Hey, I never thought of it that way, Rocky," I said. "But what do I do with all the insurance policies that I've been paying premiums on?"

"Cash 'em in!" he said. "Take the loot and come down to a PONY track with me. I'll show you some gambling that makes sense. When you bet on a horse and win, you do the collecting, not some crumby beneficiary!"

PONY MEN TALK HORSE SENSE

They'll be glad to discuss gambling with you, and show you what kind of idiot you are for buying life insurance. For more information about PONY gambling, mail coupon at right.

VITAL FEATURES

FUTURE SINGING COMMERCIALS ..... 4

An old song always brings on nostalgia — until Madison Avenue adapts it for a new singing commercial. Then it brings on nausea.

CELEBRITIES' NIGHTMARES ..... 8

While many famous people are literally living on "Dream Street", a quick turn of events could put them in "Nightmare Alley."

SOME MAD HINTS FOR XMAS ..... 10

With this timely article, MAD offers some helpful suggestions for beating the Xmas rush, and sets you up for the bum's rush.

A MAD GUIDE TO HYPNOTISM ..... 18

You'll see how hypnotism works when you read this article, because you'll start getting sleepy . . . sleepy . . . very sleepy . . .

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF COPS ..... 28

For his regular "Lighter Side" spot in this issue, Dave Berg takes a look at "Cops". And now, the cops are looking for Dave Berg.

3 METHODS OF GETTING A JOB ..... 30

MAD offers 3 sure-fire methods of getting a job. If your boss catches you reading the article, you may need the information.

AWARDS FOR HOME MOVIES ..... 33

While presenting Academy Awards for Home Movies, these pages accomplish what most home movies do — they bore you to death.

MODERN TEACHER ..... 41

MAD's own version of a magazine for teachers may shed some light on why so many school drop-outs are the teachers themselves.

LETTERS DEPT.

THE MASTERPIECE

Congratulations on "The Masterpiece" in MAD #82. I think it voiced the public's reaction to the movie "Cleopatra" and to the disgusting publicity it received.

Richard Binder
Buffalo, New York

I wish to thank Don Martin for the brilliantly conceived satire, "The Masterpiece." I think it admirably expresses the feelings of the public at this point as to the subject involved, and I hope that the message gets through to all those concerned.

Louise M. Bayer
New York City

SERIOUS LETTER

This is an honest-to-goodness, serious letter, no gags or silly questions. I have been reading MAD for several years and I am still amazed. I have seen articles in your publication on subjects which would never be touched in other leading magazines. Yet, you have had the courage to deal with these subjects in a comical manner. You have treated subjects with humor, but the real underlying message comes through. You have had the courage to stand up for your convictions and beliefs. You have been unafraid to bring the truth to your readers, even if it appears to be mere satire. In these times and with the world in the state it is in, all MAD readers should be thankful for your enjoyable, humorous and most of all truthful magazine. You do not try to cover up or color your articles. Bravo for your fortitude and ingenuity. I know you won't print this letter because you and your staff are much too modest to accept any of the credit you so richly deserve...

Charlene L. Seegert
Cannon Falls, Minn.

Oh, you are right! You are so right!—Ed.

GOOD SPORTS

We, the greedy optometrists who belong to the California Optometric Association, thank you for printing that blurry ad on the inside front cover of your October issue, thereby causing some of your stupid readers in this state to strain their eyes and rush to us so that we could overcharge them for lenses and frames and eye-drops and like that. Only thing is, we liked the ad so much we kept reading and re-reading it ourselves, and now most of us have strained our own eyes and now we need new furshlugginer glasses.

Arthur C. Heinsen, O.D., Director
Dept. of Public Information

TWO MAD ANNUALS?

You guys are pretty good—having two "annuals" each year!

Gerry Zmijewski
Baltimore, Md.

Your "6th Annual Edition" was very good. All TWO of them. Let's see you get out of this.

Terry Adams
San Gabriel, Calif.

We're getting out of it by publishing a third annual, called "A Collection of MAD Follies"—on sale Dec. 5th. As with "The Worst From MAD" and "More Trash From MAD," "MAD Follies" will contain acts of idiocy from past issues plus a hilarious bonus insert.—Ed.

UPON REFLECTION

I think your Letters Department is the dumbest thing I've ever read. The only thing it does for MAD is to take up space. I'd like to get a look at one of those idiots who writes to you. He must be a real clod!!

Steven Wagner
Anaheim, Calif.

J-just give me a minute, I'll think up a clever answer! Let's see . . . —Ed.

UPCOMING BERG BOOK

MAD's "Berg's-Eye View Department" has made a hit with me every issue. His superb artistry combined with his satirical and hilarious wit make an unbeatable combination. Why don't you come out with a paperback edition?

Stephen Brenner
North Hollywood, Calif.

I think it would be a good idea to publish a book full of "The Lighter Side of Rain"—"Smoking"—"Summer"—"Winter", etc., all by the funniest guy on your staff, Dave Berg. If you do, I'll be the first guy to buy one.

Frank Kryza
Arlington, Va.

Berg fans will be happy to learn that Dave is hard at work on a paperback book of all-new and original material to be called "MAD's Dave Berg Looks at the U.S.A." Watch for it.—Ed.

CONGRATULATORY LETTER

I dislike readers who send in congratulatory letters for your articles. They take up space, and aren't particularly funny. Oh, by the way, I enjoyed reading "The Nurtzes". Congratulations to Mort Drucker and Stan Hart on a fine job.

Dave Greenleaf
Dunkirk, N.Y.

You're right, Dave. They aren't particularly funny!—Ed.

VIVA SERGIO

Sergio Aragones is the funniest artist MAD has had in a long time. His "Drawn-Out Dramas" put more hilarity in less space than any other MAD drawing. His two articles, "A MAD Look at the U.S. Space Effort" and "A MAD Look at Motorcycle Cops" were really great. Let's see more of Sergio Aragones.

Dave Stanton, Pres.
The Society for the Promotion of Sergio Aragones

Sergio does "A MAD Look at Santa" in this issue.—Ed.

TO THE POINT

I know how disgusted you must get having to read long, drawn-out letters, so for this reason I am making this letter as short as possible. I will come right to the point because I realize how frustrating it must be to you to read letters that are "overdone" and yet actually have a very short message. It must be terribly boring to read a letter by some "nut" who "beats around the bush" before he gets to the subject he wrote to you about. I have learned that getting right to the subject saves a lot of time and effort. I am making this letter "short and sweet" because I realize the truth of this fact. I would not have you read a long drawn-out letter for the world, because I know you get enough of them as it is. And I know how mad you must get when you have to read that type of letter. Well, rest assured that I am not one of those people who has to make a dull endless speech just to express a small statement. That is why I will get right down to what I wrote you about . . . which I forgot.

Dallas, Texas

FUTURE SINGING ADAPTED FROM THE WORKS

If RALEIGH adapted Lerner and Loewe's "On The Street Where You Live"

It's arrived, Dear—
That wonderful gift
that we smoked and
saved for so long!

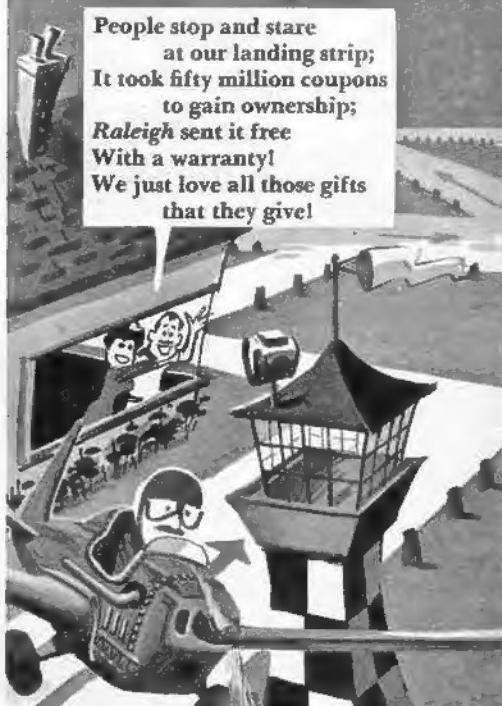

I'm so
happy,
I could sing . . .

We have never owned
a stuffed moose before,
For a stuffed moose we just never had no use before;
Now we've thirty-three—
Raleigh sent them free!
We just love all those gifts
that they give!

People stop and stare
at our landing strip;
It took fifty million coupons
to gain ownership;
Raleigh sent it free
With a warranty!
We just love all those gifts
that they give!

If ANACIN adapted Rodgers & Hart's "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered"

Miss Jones, would you mind coming into my office and
taking a letter?

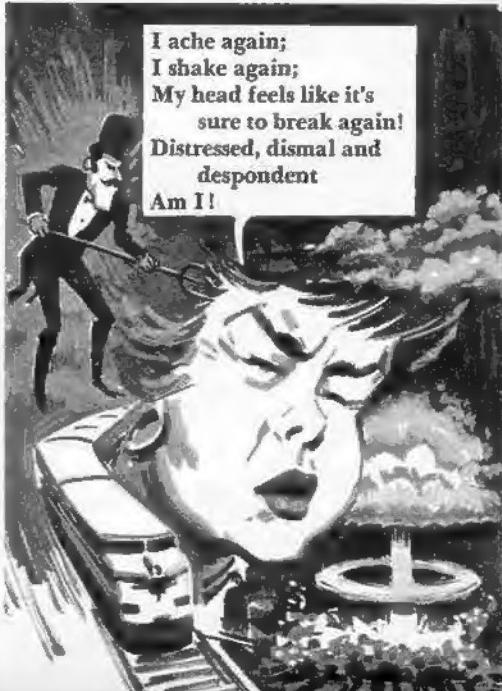

Letters! Letters!
Alla time, letters!
Didn't you hear—
Lincoln freed the slaves!

Control yourself! So
you've got a headache!
Don't take it out on the Boss!

I ache again;
I shake again;
My head feels like it's
sure to break again!
Distressed, dismal and
despondent
Am I!

And, oh, just look at our ceiling—
You will see a chimpanzee, too!
We love the glorious feeling
That we're saving up to get him The Bronx Zoo!

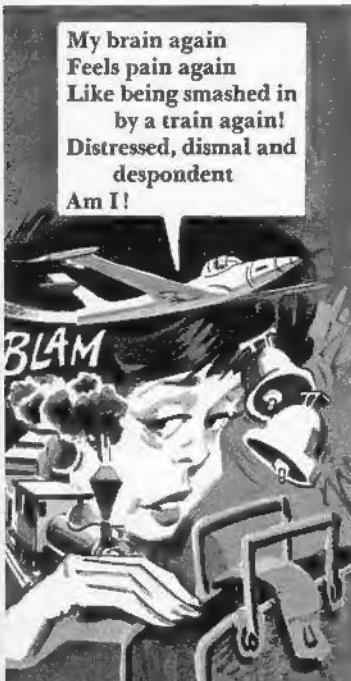

Every week we smoke
Eighty packs or so—
And those coupons we are saving
In great stacks, you know!

When our son turns four
We'll save even more!
We just love all those gifts
that they give!

My brain again
Feels pain again
Like being smashed in
by a train again!
Distressed, dismal and
despondent
Am I!

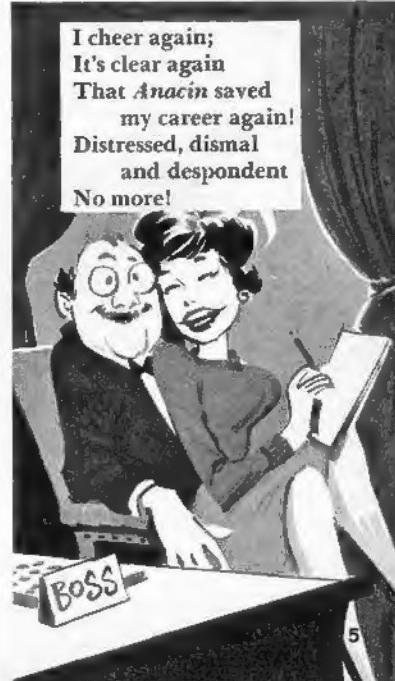

Though my skull's
Fairly oozing,
Still this pain
Cannot last—

There's one thing
That I'm using—
And it works
Fast—FAST—FAST!

I cheer again;
It's clear again
That Anacin saved
my career again!
Distressed, dismal
and despondent
No more!

If DASH adapted Sigmund Romberg's "Stouthearted Men"

Give us some suds that are long lasting suds
That will slosh through our wash till it's clean!

We've got the suds that will clean all your duds
But that still won't clog up your machine!!—Ohhhh!

If ALLSTATE adapted George M. Cohan's "Give My Regards To Broadway"

Oh, Harry, what are we going to do? We've lost everything!

I won't know till I've talked with my Allstate Insurance man. I just called him from the booth at the corner—
and here he comes now!

We bring regards from Allstate—
The company that understands!
You've got our new Home Owner's policy,
Which means you're in good hands!

Now that your house is burning,
We know you need financial aid!
We bring regards from old Allstate
To say your pre-mi-um's not paid!

If CREST adapted Leonard Bernstein's "The Jets' Song"

We're the greatest!

We use
Crest!

We walk
tall!

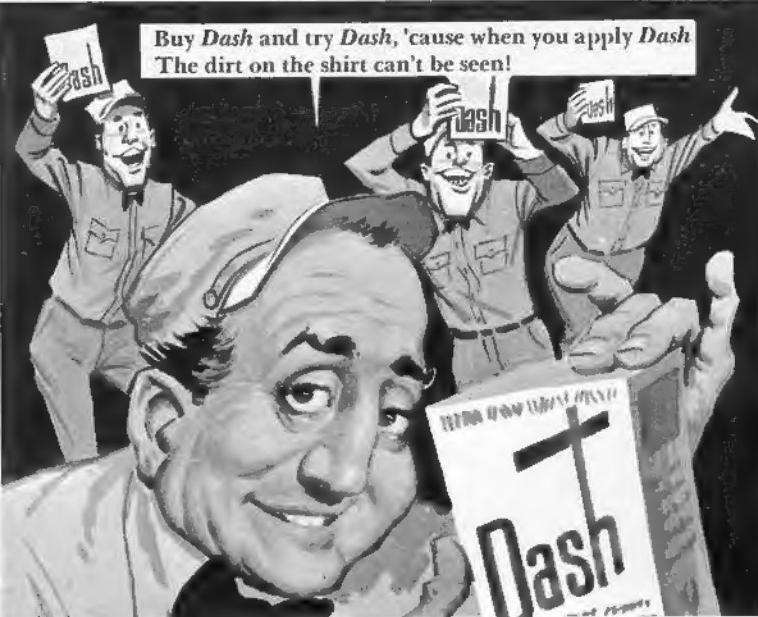

When you use Crest
You are fighting decay
From your first baby tooth
To that last gold inlay!

When you use Crest
In your home dental plan
All your teeth stay in shape
'Cause it's got Fluoristan!

Buy Dash and try Dash, 'cause when you apply Dash
The dirt on the shirt can't be seen!

Dash!
We don't mean "All" or "Fab" or "Ad" or "Tide" or "Cheer"!
Splash
Your clothes in Dash—and all the grime will disappear!

If VITALIS adapted Jerome Kern's "The Last Time I Saw Paris"

Hey! You still using that greasy kid stuff?

You ought to use Vitalis!
It makes your hair look keen!
That greasy kid stuff that you use
Smells worse than kerosene!

You ought to try Vitalis!
It beautifies your dome!
That greasy kid stuff that you use
Just messes up your comb!

It's used by all us baseball stars!
We buy it by the case!
So get Vitalis or you'll find
You'll never reach first base!

You ought to use Vitalis!
That's what I'm paid to say!
Believe me when I tel-l-l you
I use it every day!

It passed every test
In Maine and Indiana!
It outcleaned the rest
In Georgia and Montana!

It beats Ipana!!

We all tried Crest
While the others did not
Now we've thirty percent
Less decay than they got!

When you use Crest
You--use--the--BEST!

Here it is November, and you've probably just finished your last-minute Christmas Shopping! Well, that takes care of 1962! Now what about 1963?

SOME MAD HINTS THE COMING CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

To prepare yourself physically for shopping during the Christmas Season, follow this practical training course:

Gather 20 friends . . . Come to think of it, in this case enemies would be better! . . . in one room in your home.

Next, empty everything but one shirt from closet. Put price tag of $12.00 on shirt, then mark it down to $1.98.

At the count of 3, try to beat your 20 friends to the one shirt. Repeat until you've mastered this technique.

MAILING LINES

It's bad enough buying gifts, but mailing them is worse. Here's MAD's method of licking the Post Office problem:

Buy cheap—(The cheaper the better!)—alarm clock. Wrap and label all gifts that have to be mailed . . . plus clock.

With wrapped alarm clock ticking loudly, stand on a line at the Post Office. Act suspicious, nervous and fidgety.

You'll be first on line in no time—unless, that is, you live in an area where practically everyone reads MAD.

Since so many people wait till the last minute to do their shopping and other Christmas chores, MAD now comes to their rescue by offering . . .

"WHAT TO BUY WHO" QUESTIONNAIRE

SPECIAL CHRISTMAS SHOPPING BADGES

A collection of useful badges to avoid unpleasant physical contact during the Christmas shopping rush:

Paste this badge on stiff cardboard, cut it out, and pin it to your lapel. Enter any crowded Department Store, decide which floor you want to shop on, and direct people to floors other than the one you've chosen. Then you shop in uncrowded, leisurely fashion.

Use this badge to shop after 9 PM and before 8 AM. Be prepared to save lots of money as no sales help is usually present at this time. Be prepared to save even more money as real watchman is usually present at this time, and prison inmates don't exchange gifts.

If the 2 foregoing procedures do not appeal to you for various reasons . . . like you're too chicken to use them, try this badge. It establishes you as a "Kook"! People will be afraid to question you as you push through the crowds and walk to the front of lines.

TRIMMING THE TREE

How to trim the Christmas Tree while taking precautions advised by National, State and Local Safety Councils.

(1) Ornaments: One must be careful in choosing ornaments. Glass and plastic ornaments will break and litter floor with dangerous pieces. Don't use them. Foil ornaments are too light and fragile, so leave them off the tree, too.

(2) Lights: You will want your tree to be a blaze of glory, but you cannot use candles. They are a fire hazard. And since electric lights short out easily, better not use those either.

(3) Trimmings: Tinsel, angel hair, etc. tend to fall off tree making it hard on bare feet come Christmas morning. Avoid using these items at all costs.

(4) The Tree: A tall tree means climbing a ladder to decorate, with chance of a nasty fall. Small trees are fire hazards, so prune back branches well. And keep a fire extinguisher nearby.

THE CHRISTMAS CARD PROBLEM

Every year, we receive hundreds of Christmas cards, mostly from people we neglected to send cards to ourselves. With this simple MAD "3-piece Label Set," the problem is solved.

Here is typical card received from someone you neglected to send one to:

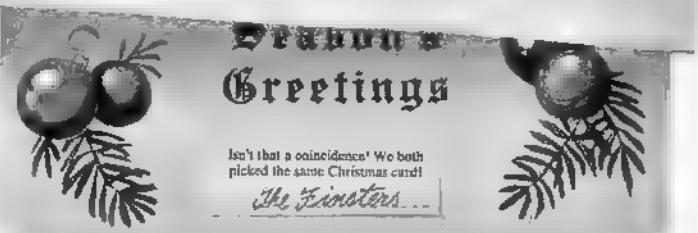

Using special "MAD 3-piece Label Set,"
you can drop same card back in the mail:

SPECIAL "AFTER CHRISTMAS CARDS"

There are several notes or cards to be sent out after Christmas. MAD takes most of the work out of writing them with this selection of "After Christmas Cards":

"Thank You Card" for Christmas Gift you really hated but helps you avoid lying about how much you loved the thing:

"Belated Card" for people who send cards too late to be returned, and too late to even send back New Year Card:

DON MARTIN DEPT. PART I

DON MARTIN

*From "Collected Verse of Edgar A. Guest," Copyright, 1934, by The Reilly & Lee Co.

I've sipped a rich man's sparkling wine,
His silverware I've handled.
I've placed these battered legs of mine,
'Neath tables gayly candled.
I dine on rare and costly fare
When'er good fortune lets me,

But there's no meal that can compare
With those the missus gets me.

I've had your steak three inches thick with all your Sam Ward trimming,
 I've had the breast of milk-fed chick
 In luscious gravy swimming.
 To dine in swell café or club
 But irritates and frets me;

Two kiddies at the board,
 The cook right at the table,
 The four of us, a hungry horde,
 To beat that none is able.
 A big meat pie, with flaky crust!
 'Tis then that joy besets me;
 Oh, I could eat until I "bust,"

Give me the plain and wholesome grub—
 The grub the missus gets me.

Those meals the missus gets me.

A NOTE OF INTRODUCTION

First of all, remember: Hypnotism is an art, like playing the violin or the kazoo, and requires intensive practice before you can master it. Just as you would not expect to pick up a violin or a kazoo and immediately play it like an expert, you cannot expect to pick up this magazine and immediately become an expert hypnotist after reading this article. You can, however, expect to be able to hypnotize a violin or a kazoo after reading this article—if you go in for that sort of thing.

Hypnotism is by no means new. It has been used for centuries by the Egyptians, the Indians, the Persians, the Chinese, and the Southern Baptists. Tales of healing by the spoken word, and laying on of the hands are recorded in many little-read sources—such as books.

The father of modern hypnotism was Franz Mesmer. There is no record of a mother of modern hypnotism, but a good guess might be Brigitte Bardot. Mesmer was a Viennese by birth, and an egotist by inclination, so he called his discovery "Mesmerism." In fact, he called everything he knew "Mesmerism," except Vienna, which he never called at all. (How could he call? There were no telephones!) Mesmer had peculiar ideas about how mesmerism worked. He thought that a strange current flowed from the operator to the subject. He called this "Animal Magnetism." Today, we have a different name for it. We call it "Poppycock"! Most of Mesmer's techniques have long since been discredited, including a bewildering array of idiotic gestures, passes, and armwaves. The only one using them these days is Mitch Miller.

Today, we know that hypnotism is not a mystic power, but merely the result of mental suggestion. Anyone with average mental equipment can do it. Which leaves out most of your MAD readers, but as we hypnotists say, "That's the way the cookie crumbles!" You can always try card tricks.

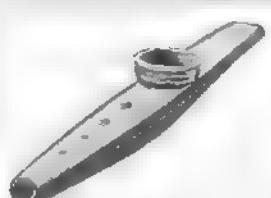

A word of warning: Hypnotism misused can be dangerous, just as a misused violin or kazoo can be dangerous. So read this article carefully before attempting to use hypnotism for, say, brain surgery.

And finally, remember that hypnotism is simply a case of mental concentration. So if you're able to concentrate long enough to read this preposterous article, the rest should be easy!

HOW TO HYPNO

Hypnotism is achieved by getting a subject to concentrate his attention on your suggestions, thus putting his mind under your control. Accomplish this, and he will be like putty in your hands. If you like handling putty, you'll love hypnotism. To put a subject under his control, the hypnotist repeats a phrase over and over again. The usual phrase is "You are very sleepy! You are very sleepy . . ." However, other phrases have been successful, like "Smoke

BASIC TOOLS USED BY EX

Kools! Smoke Kools . . ." Don't bother with phrases like "Buy MAD! Buy MAD . . ." We tried it, and it doesn't work! Doesn't work . . . Whatever phrase you use, always project self-confidence and strength of character. The subject must trust you implicitly. Do not, under any circumstance, let him catch you referring to this article. It might tend to make him a bit nervous. Hysterical, even. Especially if you forget to tear it out of the magazine.

subject stares at and concentrates on, thus inducing deep sleep. Like a TV set, f'rinstance. Here are just a few:

CANDLE

Here, the subject concentrates on a candle. The hypnotist is hoping the subject will soon go to sleep. The subject is hoping the hot wax will soon burn the hypnotist's hand.

COAT

HYPNOTIC PHONOGRAPH RECORD. This "Beginner's Aid" is guaranteed to put anyone to sleep. It's by Lawrence Welk.

HYPNOTIC SLEEP STICK. Used only as a last resort. A quick rap will put almost any subject ■ sleep instantly.

CHOOSING A SUBJECT

There are a number of mental and emotional qualities that make for a desirable subject, and you must look for them.

Mainly, however, you must look for a subject who's idiot enough to let another idiot like you try to hypnotize him.

HIGH INTELLIGENCE

Surprising as it may seem, high intelligence is desirable in a subject. A stupid person is less easily hypnotized than an intelligent one. The trouble is, the intelligent ones have more sense than to fool around with this junk.

But anyway, it's a fact that a person's susceptibility to hypnosis increases as his I.Q. increases. Thus, someone like Einstein would have been easy to hypnotize . . . while the Editor of MAD probably cannot be hypnotized at all.

GOOD SUBJECT

BAD SUBJECT

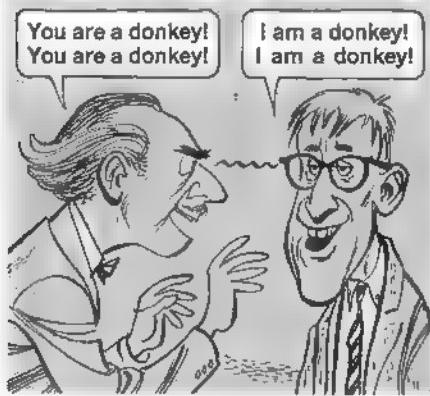

RIDICULOUS SUBJECT

COOPERATIVE ATTITUDE

No one can be hypnotized against his will. The reason for this is that the subject actually hypnotizes himself. The hypnotist merely acts as a "catalyst." Those of you who have not as yet run off to look up "catalyst" can readily see, therefore, how important the subject's attitude can be. The subject must be extremely cooperative, or nothing will happen. For your first subject, choose someone who is very, very cooperative. Elizabeth Taylor, for instance.

GOOD SUBJECT

BAD SUBJECT

MENTAL HEALTH

When you choose a subject, be sure that he is absolutely normal, mentally — and that he is free from any serious neuroses or psychoses. If you know anyone like this, you are either very lucky, or a good liar. So do what you can with what's available, and above all, stay away from the Advertising Crowd. No sense in just asking for trouble!

GOOD SUBJECT

BAD SUBJECT

MANIPULATING THE SUBJECT

THE SUBJECT'S MORAL CODE

When manipulating your subject, always remember that he will not do anything under hypnosis that he would not do normally. His moral code protects him. For instance, you can get a human being to behave like a cuckoo bird, but you can't get a cuckoo bird to behave like a human being.

Under hypnosis, a juvenile delinquent, having been told that he is entering his favorite pool hall, cheerfully saunters into a Sunday School class.

A big, dumb truck driver, having been told that he is going into a theater to see a Brigitte Bardot film, cheerfully attends a performance of Hamlet.

A pretty girl, having been told that she is in her own bedroom, undressing for bed, cheerfully clobbers the hypnotist who thought she was hypnotized.

DEGREES OF HYPNOSIS

There are several stages of the "Hypnotic Trance" through which a subject may pass while under hypnosis. Therefore, it is important that you know how to recognize the stages and that you know what to do with a subject in each case.

STAGE ONE: LIGHT TRANCE

Patient still seems to be awake. The trance is characterized by open eyes, even breathing, and a calm demeanor.

WHAT TO DO:

Give simple suggestions. Light memory probing and post-hypnotic suggestions possible if subject is in this stage.

STAGE TWO: DEEP TRANCE

Patient seems to be asleep. Trance is characterized by closed eyes, a deep breathing, and a very calm demeanor.

WHAT TO DO:

Give complicated suggestions. Deeper memory probing, surgery, psychiatric treatment are possible in this stage.

STAGE THREE: TOO DEEP TRANCE

Trance characterized by wide, staring eyes, absolutely no breathing at all, and a very, very, very calm demeanor.

WHAT TO DO:

Better bury him . . .

Quick . . .

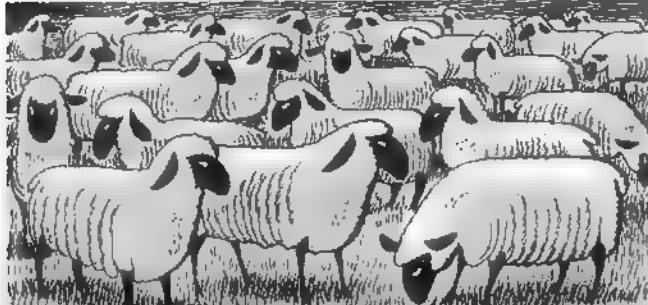

He's dead!

MASS HYPNOSIS

Mass hypnosis (putting large groups of people to sleep at one time) is a difficult feat, and can only be done by a handful of expert hypnotists, and most TV show producers.

If you attempt it, be sure your subjects are in the right mood: sympathetic, receptive and well-behaved. Otherwise, you'll only embarrass yourself, and alienate your subjects.

A NOTE OF WARNING

No doubt there are real dangers in the practice of hypnotism . . . especially now that you have decided to try it. However, there are real dangers in everything we do, like

METHOD #1—The "Direct Approach"

Look at the "Want Ads" in your local paper, and carefully pick out the job you want . . .

Instead, go directly into the Men's Room down the hall, and remove your jacket and roll up your shirt sleeves . . .

METHOD #2—The "Decoy Ad Approach"

Decide on what kind of job you want, then place "Want Ad" in paper that sounds very attractive to others in field:

METHOD #3—The "One-Two Tailored Ad"

Pick out company you would like to work for, then place ad in paper carefully worded so it applies only to you:

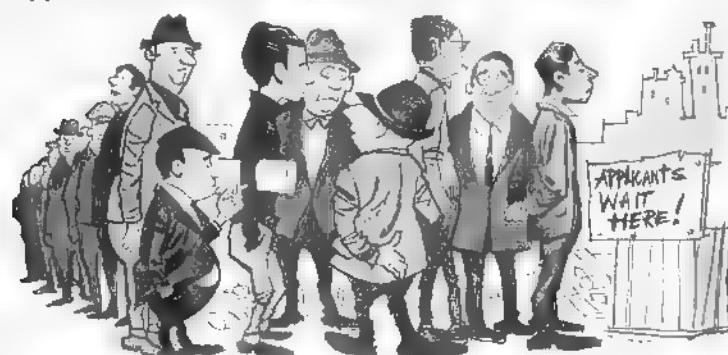

Answer ad by going to the address where the interviews for the job are being given . . .

With shirt sleeves rolled up and tie loosened, enter the waiting room with air of authority and casually announce:

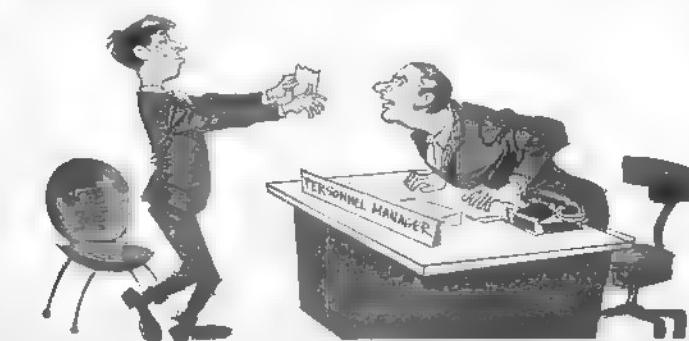

Since no such job exists, or for that matter the address, applicants will waste day waiting in vain in vacant lot . . .

Approach"

You then show up with ad, and Personnel Manager, not wishing to appear an idiot, will hire you on the spot!

Do not go directly into waiting room because it will be filled by hundreds of others like you who answered ad . . .

While other applicants leave hastily, you retrieve your jacket, roll down sleeves, and return alone to claim job!

While you select the next best job offer and apply for an interview completely devoid of competition. (Note: Do not make mistake, get excited, and answer your own want ad!)

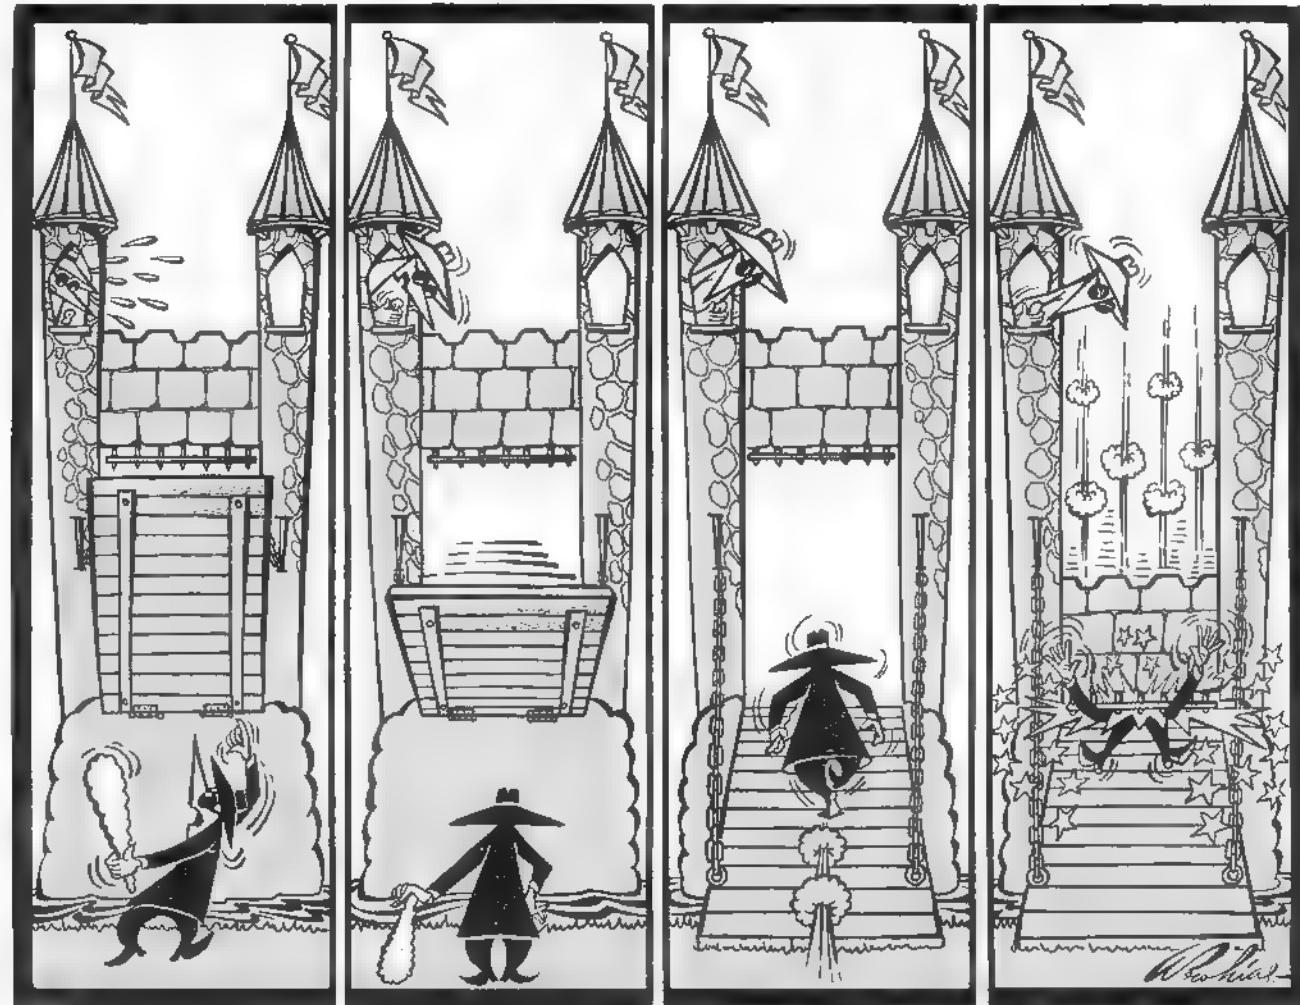

If he gives you any trouble, show second ad you placed

Every year, the movie industry makes a big hoo-hah over the Academy Awards. Frankly, we're not impressed. How tough is it to make a movie when you have $37,000,000 to blow on it? Huh? MAD feels that it's about time the really dedicated movie-makers of this country get their deserved recognition! We mean that vast army of amateurs who are devoted to the cinematic art despite limited funds and even more limited talent . . . the "Home Movie Makers"! And so, in order to give 'em what's coming to 'em, MAD Magazine proudly presents:

The ACADEMY AWARDS for HOME MOVIES

ARTIST: MORT DRUCKER

WRITER: STAN HART

From the fabulous Knotty Pine Basement in the garishly furnished split level house of Mr. Louis Kreevitch, overlooking the other eleven thousand two hundred and fifty-seven garishly furnished split level houses in lovely Levittown, New York—the "Home Movie" Capital of the World—the Amateur Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences presents "The First Annual Academy Awards Ceremony"!

Out of more than 1,796,542 reels of film submitted, the Academy has chosen the ones it considers to be the finest examples of the "Home Movie-Making Art". To supervise the balloting, the Academy has engaged the services of Mr. Irving Waterhouse, famous candy store owner, who is also a Notary Public, and took two years of bookkeeping at Rutgers night extension school. He will hand me the envelopes, which have been sealed with library paste, and I will open them and read the nominees and winner in each of the categories . . .

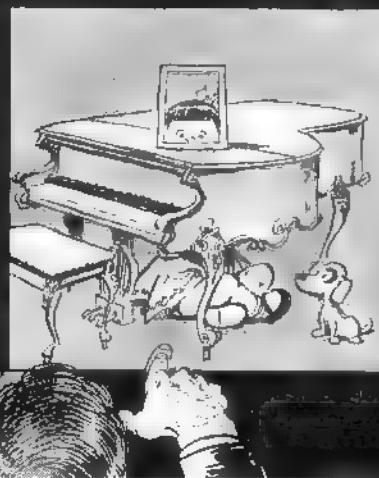

Our projectionist, Mr. Lyman Fumbler, will show excerpts from each award-winning film. Since Lyman always has a little trouble threading the film, I'd like to ask you not to stamp, whistle, or clap your hands in unison. Also please refrain from making shadow pictures of swans on the screen! That means you, too, Mr. Waterhouse! Well, I see that Lyman is about ready—so on with the Awards . . .

The first category is for "Best Coyness"! The nominees are the films: "Aw, C'mon, Uncle Jack", featuring Jack Gluck being coaxed to do his 'Pat Rooney imitation'—

"Girl of 4, Where Are You?" with Diane Picknoze doing "I'm A Little Teapot" while sitting under a piano—

"Modesty", starring Theresa Mutz reluctantly yielding to pressure to show her new engagement ring—

The next category is for "Best Waving"! The nominees are the films: "Upstaging", featuring Sally Ann Freem, staring at her younger sister's wedding ...

"My Son, The 4th Window From The End", with Sanford Gass leaving to visit his aunt in Utah ...

"Yoo-Hoo", featuring Mildred Twill during the minute of silence at the Memorial Day services ...

For the best "Special Events—Wedding" category, nominees are: "How Romantic", with Aunt Ida and Aunt Zelda waltzing together at Shirley Plutz's wedding ...

"Just What We Wanted", featuring Fran and Walt Akers opening their presents, with the bride's mother calculating what each guest spent—

"Unidentified Flying Objects", with the kid brothers of the happy couple throwing shelled peanuts and scalping mint patties across the dance floor—

And the winner is Mrs. Selma Needleman for her great performance in "Oh, please—Don't—I look Terrible!"

Congratulations,
Mrs. Needleman!
To you goes the
Academy's Award
Statuette . . .
"The Marvin"!

Oh, I'm so surprised, I can't talk . . . so I'll just hand out these mimeographed copies of my modest acceptance speech!

And the winner is: "Goodbye, Already", starring Claude Fibula on location at the Long Island Railroad Depot—

I'd like to give thanks to all the people without whose efforts, I would not be here tonight—to Dr. F. Lawson, a giant among bone specialists . . . to Lincoln Fram, the greatest X-ray technician a guy was ever blessed with . . . to insurance man Albert S. Alexander, a claim examiner's claim examiner . . . and last but not least, to lawyer Sam Leighton for his invaluable behind-the-scenes work on my million dollar negligence suit . . . Thank you, one and all!

And the winner is: "Eat, Darling!", showing how adorable it is for a grown man to get fell like an infant . . .

The "Marvin" goes to Jerry and Ginny De Fuccio! However, a slight technicality prevents the Academy from presenting the Award until their community property settlement is agreed upon!

Now the award for "Priceless Memories Of Children's Parties". The first nominee is "The Search", a candid study of the innocent joys of childhood . . .

Joan Fagel's film, "You're Driving Me To An Early Grave", starring her twins poking each other in their unending "I-Got-You-Last!" contest—

"The Actress", with Clara Englehard attracting attention by performing her 'Make-Believe-I'm-Dead' routine—

The nominees for the "He's Funny Enough To Be On TV" category are: "Diamond Lil", with Lenny Rupp dressed as Mae West, embarrassing his family for 50 feet of film—

"Girl Overboard!" featuring horseplay by Harry Hartnett as he gaily throws his terrified date into the pool, knowing full well she can't swim—

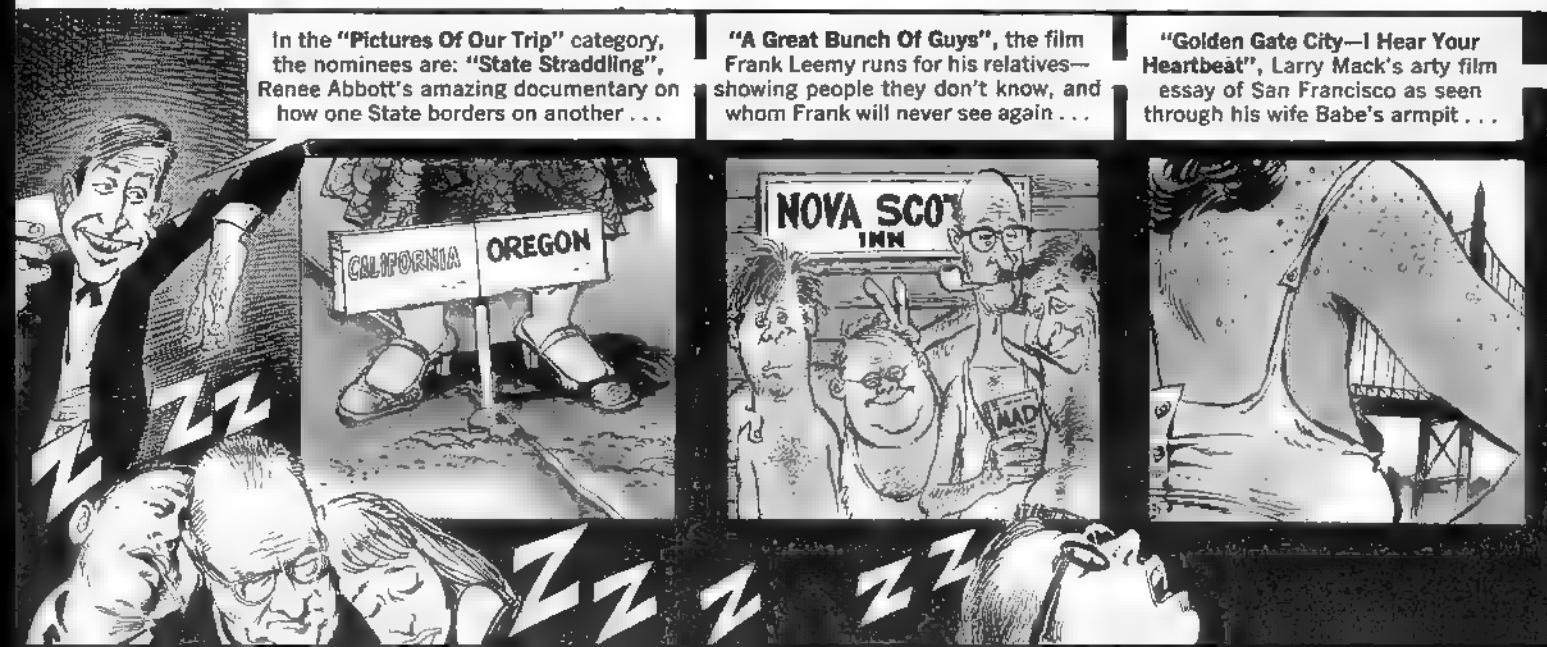

"The 65th Birthday", starring Carl Bletch doing his clever 'This Food Stinks!' pantomime at the catered party his son gave in his honor—

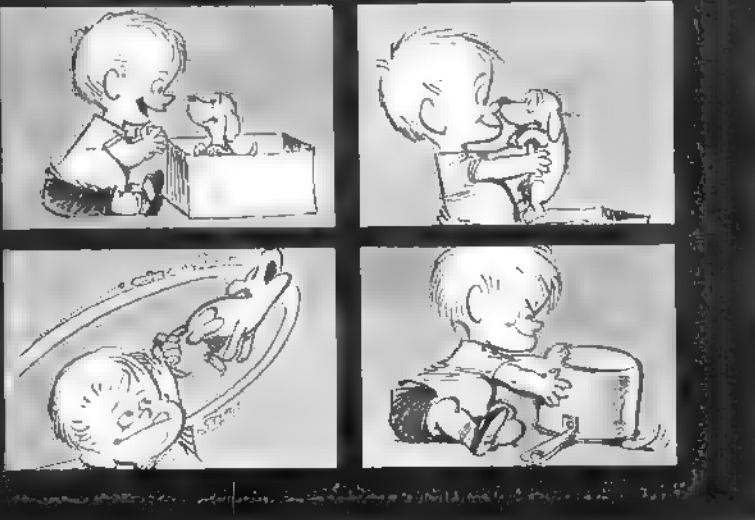

In the "Pictures Of Our Trip" category, the nominees are: "State Straddling", Renee Abbott's amazing documentary on how one State borders on another . . .

"A Great Bunch Of Guys", the film Frank Leemy runs for his relatives—showing people they don't know, and whom Frank will never see again . . .

"Golden Gate City—I Hear Your Heartbeat", Larry Mack's arty film essay of San Francisco as seen through his wife Babe's armpit . . .

And the winner is: "A Boy's Best Friend Is His Dog, But Not On His First Birthday", with fiendish Donny Portnoy—

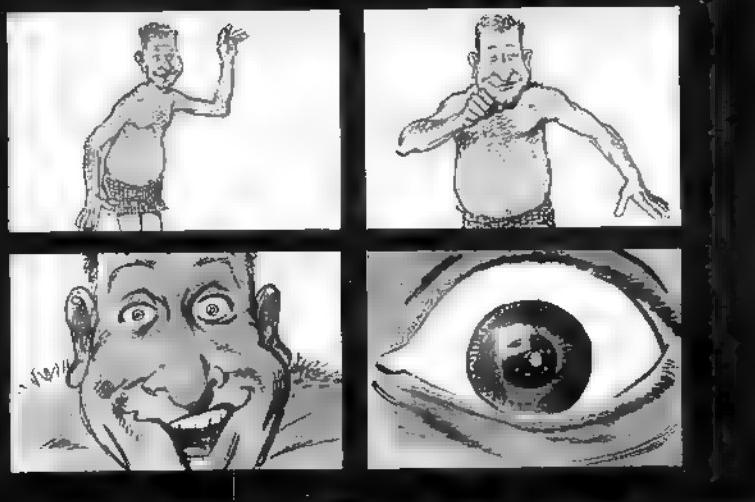

Accepting the award for Donny is his father, Eric Portnoy . . .

Thank you—and I know that Donny would want me to give credit to that late great canine showman . . . the immortal Fluffy, whose memory will serve as an inspiration to us all!

And the winner is: "Gangway—Here I Come", with Al Longo in the ever-popular "Running At The Camera" routine . . .

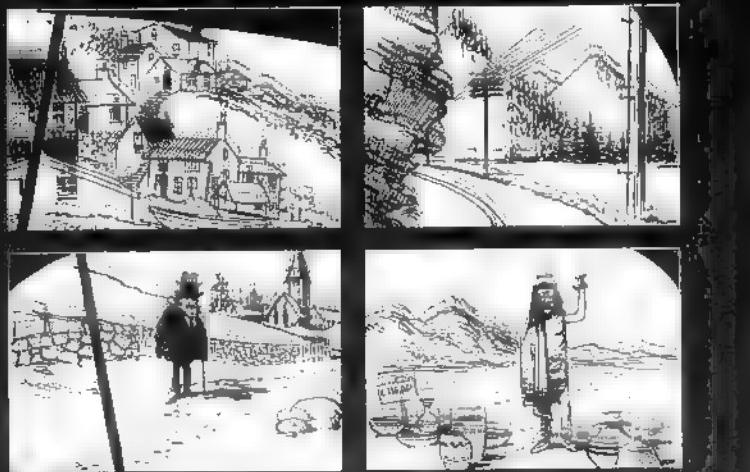

Al, baby, you're beautiful, just beautiful. We've seen good runs at cameras, but yours was truly an 8-millimeter milestone. Would you like to say something . . . ?

The stitches come out next week!

And the winner is: "Driving Across America, Land Of Scenic Splendor", Doris Flang's classic example of how to shoot an entire travel film through a moving car's windshield—

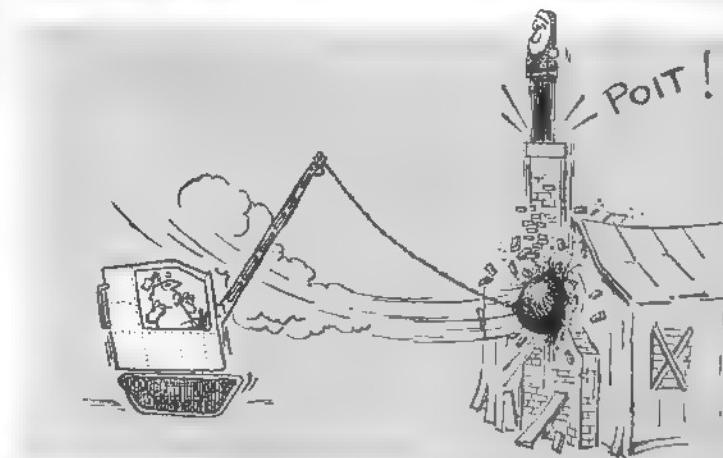

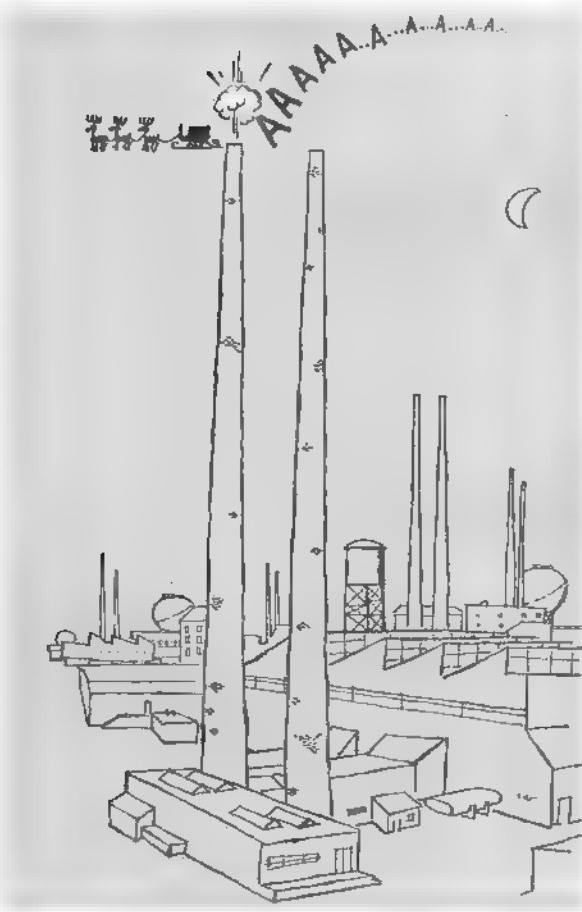

Thank you! And I want to thank my husband whose driving helped make our trip from New York to California the happiest 13 hours in my life!

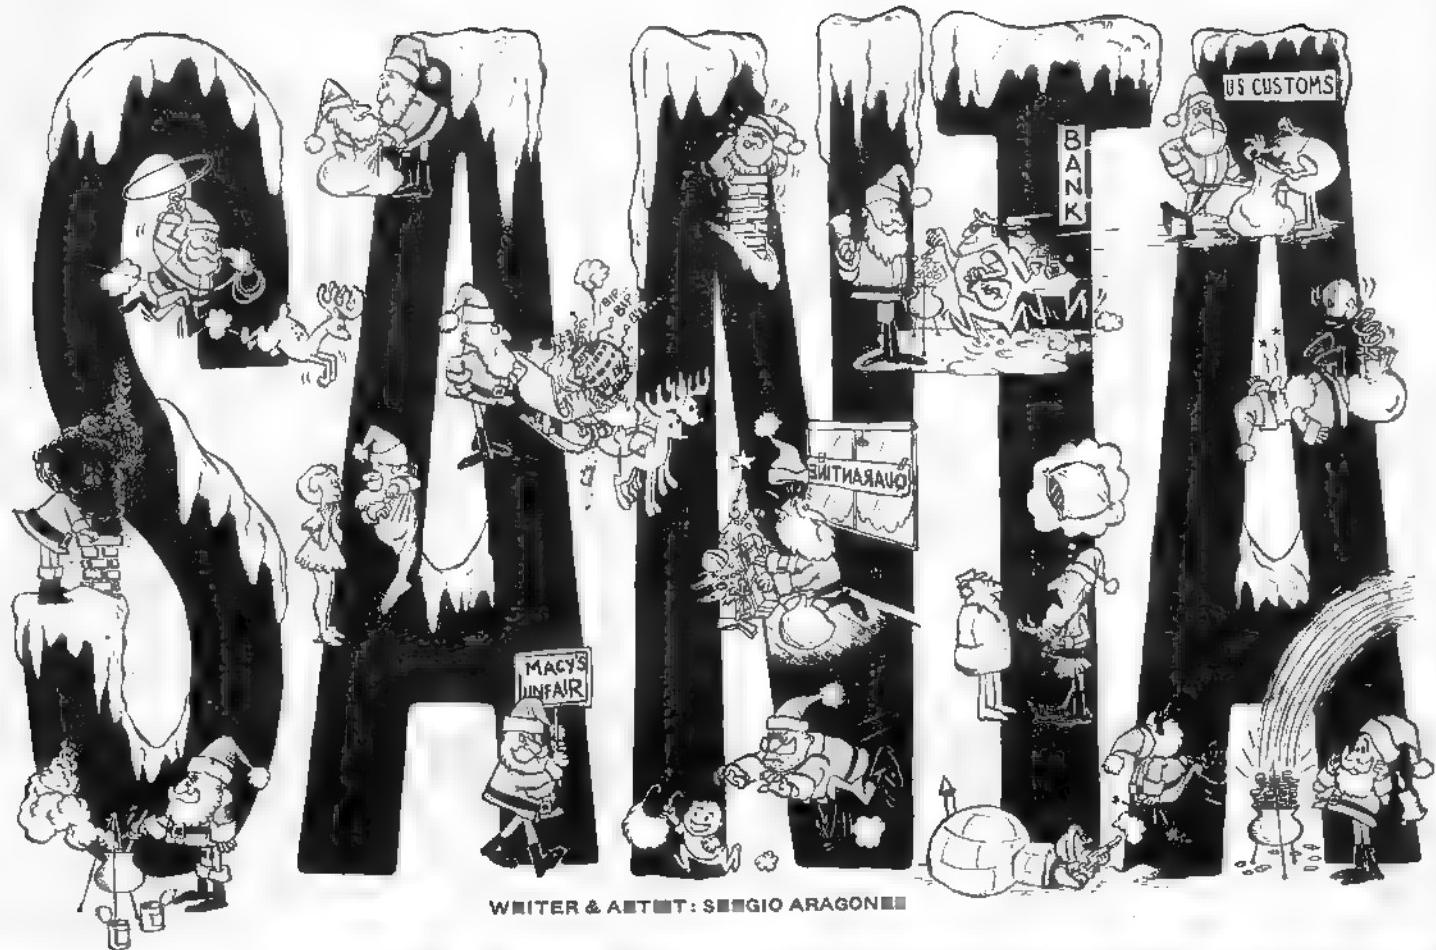

And that brings to a close the First Annual Academy Awards For Home Movies. The winners will celebrate at a lavish party in the two rear booths of Mr. Waterhouse's candy store. And . . . please, winners! No movie cameras! We want to enjoy ourselves!

Teacher of the Month

At 7 AM, Gumber puts on a double breasted suit and wide-brimmed hat, sticks a cigar in his mouth, and tells his neighbors he's off to his book-making parlor. They don't know that his respectable job as Bookie is just a front for his real vocation . . . a miserable teacher at P.S. 46.

At 8:45, Gumber goes on school yard duty. While extremely hazardous work (with possible death always imminent), being outdoors gives Gumber a chance to sneak a smoke—something you can't do in school—unless you're a pupil!

At 8 AM, Gumber handles his first extra-curricular, non-paying teaching assignment in school basement. P.S. 46, built in 1823, was once infested by rats. But the rats are gone now. The school was too damp and dirty for them.

From 9:00 to 2:00, Gumber handles many important teaching assignments, such as Cafeteria duty, collecting lunch money, collecting bank books, collecting milk money, and collecting switch blade knives from the pupils. (More dangerous weapons are collected from the pupils by the school's special Bomb Demolition Squad. . .)

At 2:00, Gumber directs his class in a comedy in the school auditorium. Everyone forgets his lines, and the jokes fall flat. At 3:00, Gumber receives his monthly paycheck backstage. He goes on stage and shows it to the audience. This gets the biggest laugh of the day.

THE INQUIRING TEACHER

QUESTION: How do you feel about teachers going on strike?
WHERE ASKED: At various schools and strike picket lines.

SHIRLEE BRONX

Fourth Grade Teacher
And Potential Wife

I don't see why teachers have to resort to something as degrading as strikes. Now take me, for example. I'm an average, conscientious young teacher who lives at 147 Mosholu Parkway, a keen dancer, swell company, and my telephone number is MQ-O-4299.

All I want is to bring education and enlightenment to pupils for the rest of my life (unless I get a better offer, like getting married, say, next Tuesday). I think the $60 a week I get is more than enough and I can live on it very comfortably. Of course, my father, who I live with, and who is also a teacher and has to support me and my mother—he's got problems!

JAMES HOFFA

Labor Union Leader
And Humanitarian

Sure teachers should go on strike. Everybody should go on strike. Striking is healthy. It takes people out of their houses where they can get into trouble, and puts them on safe street corners. I like to strike. I like to strike all the big companies. I like to strike all the big plants. I'd like to strike Bobby Kennedy. Right inna mouth! Why shouldn't teachers strike? Some of my best friends are truck drivers. Some of my best truck drivers are teachers. When they're not driving trucks. Well, they gotta eat!

HERMAN KLING

Professional
Falling Student

I'm all for teachers going on strike. After all, they're human. They have a right to a living wage and decent working conditions. If, by going on strike, they bring out into the open the terrible injustice that is being played on one of today's most important professions, then I'm all for it. I'm all for anything that will open the public eyes, that will open the public minds, and that will close the public schools.

ROBERT T. WAG

Mayor and Distinguished
Public Servant

I think it's terrible when public employees have to resort to strikes. Look at me, I'm a public employee. You don't see me striking. I do the best I can on my $40,000 a year. And take my Governor friends, they're public employees. They don't strike. Just the other day, Governor Rockefeller swore to me he'd never strike for more money. And President Kennedy told me the same thing. He's a public employee. Recently, the teachers in my city wanted a raise. Did they go on strike? Of course not. We settled the whole problem by talking. That's how you always settle problems—by talking. I sat down and I talked to them. I said, "You're not getting any more money, and that's settled!"

This Month's Colorful Report Card Terminology

In keeping with the common practice in schools across the nation of disguising the true character and personality of pupils so their parents won't get like a trauma, MODERN TEACHER offers another installment of some new and colorful double-talk terminology for use on report cards.

"While his personal intellectual capacity is limitless, he rarely hesitates to absorb knowledge from others around him in order to enhance his image as a well-rounded pupil."

TRANSLATION: He cheats on exams!

* * *

"He allows himself the healthy luxury of unleashing his pent-up emotions, which, had he suppressed them, might turn him into a seething cauldron of self-consuming neuroses."

TRANSLATION: He kicks, scratches, bites and spits!

* * *

"He has an innate desire to examine at firsthand the vicissitudes of life, which has been best satisfied by personal pilgrimages into the very maw of civilization."

TRANSLATION: He cut classes 24 times this term!

* * *

"He appears to prefer the cloistered atmosphere of solitary study, rather than engage himself in the communication of class discussion."

TRANSLATION: The other kids steer clear of him because he doesn't wash.

* * *

"He is deeply concerned with the physical well-being of other students, seeing to it that they do not overindulge in calories or harm the calcium content of their teeth."

TRANSLATION: He steals cookies and candy from his classmates.

* * *

"His is a wandering, probing mind, which by its very nature, should not be accelerated onto new horizons too rapidly, but should be allowed instead to return to areas once before explored for the purpose of gathering additional insight."

TRANSLATION: He's going to be left back this term.

THE EVOLUTION OF THE U.S. TEACHER

A look at how the American Teacher has developed (or to use a better word—deteriorated) over the past century

100 YEARS AGO

Back in 1863, the American Teacher was an unbending figure of authority. He was big and strong, with a large, sinister-looking mustache. His students hated and feared him. But they respected him. His teaching methods were strictly hit or miss. Either he'd hit the pupil — or he'd miss him when he cracked his large whip. But even when he missed, the wind burns that resulted were extremely painful. Life was rough for students in those days, and many of them used to run away . . . down South, in hopes of becoming slaves and living easier lives.

50 YEARS AGO

In 1913, the American Teacher was still a rigid figure of authority, but he wasn't quite as big and strong as his predecessor, and not everybody feared him. For example, heavyweight champion Jack Johnson didn't fear him. (We can't think of anyone else!) He was a lot more liberal in his teaching methods. He abandoned the whip. Instead, his students were taught to the tune of a hickory stick. (We know it doesn't make much sense when you say it, but when you sing it, it sounds great!) Life was still rough for students, and many of them used to quit school to work in factories for 18 hours a day, which was more tolerable.

25 YEARS AGO

In 1938, the Female Teacher came into her own. She was anywhere from 25 to 65 years of age (but she always looked over 100!) She was a lot bigger and stronger than her predecessor, and a little bit uglier. But being students under her was a breeze. She rarely hit them with anything larger than a ruler, and in six months time, students never even felt it any more. But she was still feared and respected, just as if she were a man. And that's because most of her pupils weren't absolutely sure she wasn't!

TODAY

Today, the American Teacher is like a lost chicken wandering across a road, trying to get to the other side. In other words, he is a joke! No one hates him, no one fears him, and no one respects him. They merely tolerate him. Like a cold. He would never dream of belting a pupil with a whip or a hickory stick or a ruler. He has used his fists, though — but only in self defense. However, there are classrooms in the U.S. that are controlled by unbending figures of authority who are big and strong with sinister-looking mustaches whom everybody hates and fears but respects. The trouble is, they're not Teachers . . . they're pupils!

NEWS 'N' GOSSIP ABOUT THE TEACHING PROFESSION

By Harold "Sandy" Wilner

Hats off to industrious Principal Harvey Higgle, of Birchwood Junior High, who is augmenting his income with a clever use of his inter-classroom public address system. Harv personally conducts a swinging 9 A.M. to 3 P.M. disc jockey show of rock 'n' roll records and witty patter—even during exams. He's fully sponsored by local candy stores, ice cream parlors, saloons, burlesque houses, and other business establishments with messages of importance for today's school-age youngsters . . . Bad news for Ruth Bleaker, Third Grade Teacher at P.S. 131. Her parents refused to give her permission to marry one of her pupils. They feel that 31-year-old Donny Thyson is a bit too old for her. Better luck next time, Ruthie . . . Good news for the Henry Peskins in the person of a brand new 7-pound bouncing baby boy. Henry teaches math at the Jack Holt Memorial High School in Beverly Hills. His wife is a former Kindergarten Teacher, who used to conduct the 2 A.M. to Dawn session at the slightly overcrowded P.S. 6.

Best wishes to P.S. 193's Irma Brechwold, who will celebrate her 70th year as a teacher next month. 92-year old Irma, who tried to retire several times in the past but was asked to stay on by school authorities because younger teachers refuse to work for $38 a week, will celebrate the day quietly. Only the immediate family will be present at a small party given in her honor, including her mother, P.S. 193 teacher Maude Brechwold. Reba Brechwold, Irma's grandmother, who sprained her ankle while teaching gym at P.S. 193 last week, will not be able to attend.

Memo to the ridiculously spoiled students at the suburban Arthur Fingerhut School: Free bus service has now been extended to include all pupils who live more than 10 feet from the school. Previously, only pupils who lived 20 feet or more from the school could ride. And now for some bad news, kids: Since your whole school is on one level, the city has turned down your request to install escalators in the building . . . The City Planning Commission of Finneque, Illinois, has just given the green light for a new 4,500 housing unit development to be constructed within a three-block radius of P.S. 238. Naturally, no new school will be built in the area, so P.S. 238 will be a trifle more overcrowded. To make room for the added influx of pupils, all teachers will be asked to stay home on school days.

Congrats to the Fire Department. They finally freed Mrs. Sophie Zelk, who got stuck in one of those tiny writing chairs she was forced to sit on while visiting her son's Second Grade class during Open School Night in Oct. 1959.

couraging brilliant students who show promise and are well-advanced for their age. Which is why we were so excited by the card we just received from teacher Herman Fiffnik. Herman tells us that every pupil in his First Grade class speaks flawless French. However, upon investigation, we found out there's a slight catch here. French is the only language they speak. Herman teaches in Bordeaux, France. (Can't you ever be serious, Herm?)

Our condolences to the family of heroic Irving Doren, who taught Science at the brand new Richard M. Nixon Junior High School (which was involved in building graft and collapsed last week due to faulty construction). When he noticed that his room was sinking below the basement, Doren allowed his students to abandon class, but he refused to leave his desk. It isn't very often that a teacher is courageous enough to go down with his classroom. We will never forget you, Irv . . . Worried because your students act like a bunch of dolts whenever a Superintendent or Principal drops in unexpectedly to sit in on one of your classes? Here are some excellent questions, submitted by Ninth Grade Teacher Harold Opp, which you can ask safely: "How much is two and two?", "Spell cat!", "Who would like to demonstrate 'breathing' for today's 'Show and Tell?'", "Which of these famous men discovered the Hudson River: (a) Henry Hudson (b) Seymour M. Dopplefinger (c) Paul Anka?" Contributor Opp promises to send along the answers in time for next month's column.

Best of luck to Fifth Grade Teacher Victor Emster, of P.S. 49. He's taking the "Big Step" with his childhood sweetheart, Miriam Troy. The couple will live at the home of Miriam's parents until Victor decides what he wants to do for a living . . . We hear that thousands of letters are pouring into Washington every day, congratulating all the Congressmen who have been successfully fighting Federal Aid to Education. The only trouble is, they're all from Nikita Khrushchev.

Will some of Harry Carruther's friends at City College please do something about helping him to get rid of the terrible inferiority complex he's recently developed? It just isn't dignified for a respectable College Professor to wear one of those idiotic false-nose-and-eye-glasses disguises whenever he goes in to pay his rent. Even though Harry did discover that the new landlord of the 57 story apartment building he lives in is Seymour Gribble, whom Harry flunked in Business Administration two years ago.

Student Frank Pock, voted "Boldest Exam Cheater for '63", is shown here entering a room to take his final exam in "Anatomy of the Horse". At the other end of the rope is the nerviest crib sheet Frank ever smuggled into class.

What's What Among The "Part-Time Job Set" Along Teacher's Row

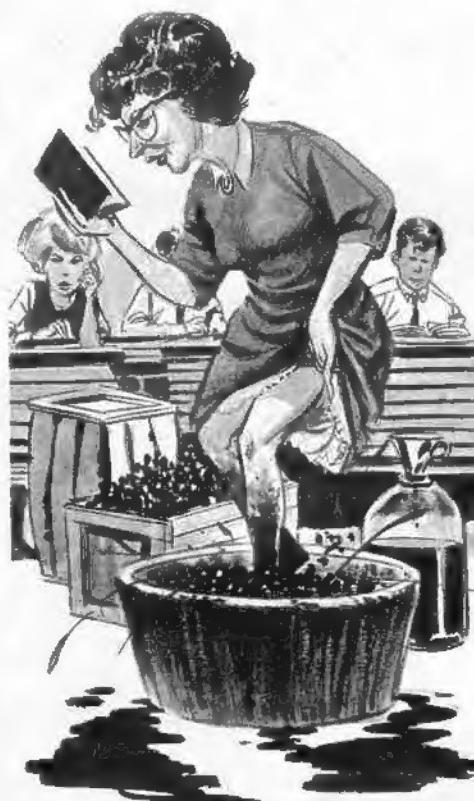

The Fourth Annual Teachers Dance at The Potrezebie School last month was a huge success. Biggest joke of the evening was on the strangers who happened into the gym and thought that the affair was a Costume Ball. They didn't know that all those present were actually teachers dressed in the uniforms of the part-time jobs they were headed for . . . after the Dance.

Meet Sylvia Kupp, "Moonlighter Of The Year". Since January, Sylvia has been teaching her class Algebra all wrong . . . intentionally! With poor grades, the students have naturally had to seek help from an outside tutor. So far this year, Sylvia's income has been $3,422 as a Math Teacher, and $22,000 as an outside Math Tutor.

Here's Evelyn Glick, Biology Teacher at The Fink School, and After-Hours Wine-Maker, catching up on some of the part-time work she didn't get a chance to finish the previous night.

I'm the guy who puts eight great tomatoes in that little bitty can!!

All day long — squashing, squooshing, slamming, splattering . . . Yecch, what a mess! Thank goodness it's my last week at this gooky job! Next week my company starts using a new-type can, and I'll be able to stuff those eight great tomatoes in that little bitty can without ending up looking like I've been attacked with a meat cleaver. Mainly because our new "little bitty can" expands into a "biggy wiggy can" like an accordion.
